

I don't think that the FCC gives a DAMN about Ham Radio, and is going to screw use all, and make a lot of money doing it. BroadbandPower transmission has no grounds to be on power lines. The electric company can't even clean-up the trash they make and interferes with all services using the rf spectrum (TV, Radio, etc). I think the FCC will be making a sinful decision if they do it just for the money.

signed Bryan Harp (ARS N4GSB)